ABSTRACT

This directory is a national listing of women administrators currently employed in vocational education. This publication is organized into eight major sections and two indexes. The major sections are categorized according to institutional affiliations: (1) state education agencies, (2) local education agencies, (3) regional education agencies, (4) universities and colleges, (5) technical institutes, (6) proprietary schools and colleges, (7) federal education agencies, and (8) other. Within each major section categorized by state where employment occurs, individual biographical sketches are listed alphabetically by surname. The indexes are presented: a program area of responsibility and an alphabetical listing. The program area of responsibility index lists individual names according to the major program areas(s) directly under their administration. Women who administer nontraditional programs are identified in this index. The alphabetical index is a combined listing in alphabetical order of all persons in the directory. The introduction includes the purpose of the project, background data, summary findings, directions for using this document, and a sample resume. The appendixes contain the survey instrument and the classification system of educational agencies and institutions. (CT)

THE NATIONAL CENTER MISSION STATEMENT

The National Center for Research in Vocational Education's mission is to increase the ability of diverse agencies, institutions, and organizations to solve educational problems related to individual career planning, preparation, and progression. The National Center fulfills its mission by:

- Generating knowledge through research
- Developing educational programs and products
- Evaluating individual program needs and outcomes
- Providing information for national planning and policy
- Installing educational programs and products
- Operating information systems and services
- Conducting leadership development and training programs

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This directory is a national listing of women administrators currently employed in vocational education. This publication is organized into eight major sections and two indexes. The major sections are categorized according to institutional affiliations: (1) state education agencies, (2) local education agencies, (3) regional education agencies, (4) universities and colleges, (5) technical institutes, (6) proprietary schools and colleges, (7) federal education agencies, (8) other. Within each major section categorized by state where employment occurs, individual biographical sketches are listed alphabetically by surname.

Two indexes are presented: (1) a program area of responsibility and (2) an alphabetical listing. The program area of responsibility index lists individual names according to the major program area(s) directly under their administration. Women who administer nontraditional programs are identified in this index. The alphabetical index is a combined listing in alphabetical order of all persons in the directory.

The introduction includes the purpose of the project, background data, summary findings, directions for using this document, and a sample resume. The appendixes contain the survey instrument and the classification system of educational agencies and institutions.

FOREWORD

Decision makers on the federal, state, and local levels have become acutely aware of the need to increase women's participation in the decision-making and policy-setting aspects of vocational education. Often, honest attempts by concerned decision makers to involve women in policy issues have been hampered because it has been difficult to identify a pool of women with administrative expertise. To help remedy this situation, a national survey of women administrators in vocational education has been conducted.

The objective of this national survey was to develop a directory that would serve a two-fold purpose: first, to report professional data listing women in all levels of educational institutions and agencies employed in vocational administrative capacities; and second, to identify women who administer programs traditionally administered by men. Hopefully this directory will provide decision makers with a greater awareness of the number of qualified women administrators and will serve as a resource for contacting specific individuals with experience and expertise in vocational education administration.

We wish to thank the panel of consultants—Susan Shephard, Anne Mayes, Carol Jabonaski, Beverly Hankenhoff, Paula S. Greenfield—for their help in establishing candidate selection criteria for the survey. The staff is also grateful to the educational and vocational community for the many journal and newsletter announcements publicizing the survey and for the written letters of endorsement supporting the project. It goes without saying that the successful completion of this document is due in large part to the major contributions of sex equity coordinators, supervisors, and/or directors and state directors of vocational education employed in the various states.

A special note of recognition is extended to numerous program chairpersons of the 1979 AVA convention. Specifically, we are indebted to interest group leaders Linda Beene (sex equity); James Cogdell (trade and industry); Ralph Steeb (industrial arts); Elinor Burgess (distributive education); Elizabeth Milliken (health education); Ruth Ostler (NHSS); Edward C. Mann (technical education); Winnie Dickinson (administration); Paul Day (agriculture education); and Robert Thompson (business and office education). Ellen Bowers, Nancy Evans, and Fern Green are also recognized for their review and recommendations of the final product.

The project staff employed at the National Center—Rafael Bedolla, graduate research associate, and Brenda Hemming of the clerical staff—are commended for playing a major role in the completion of this project. Novella Ross, project director, is congratulated for her diligence and persistence in completing this challenging task.

INTRODUCTION

Nearly 1,600 biographical entries are contained in this first edition of the Directory of Women Administrators in Vocational Education. Listings include presidents, deans, chairpersons, directors, and other administrators currently employed in various educational institutions and agencies in fifty-three states and territories. The purpose of this directory is to provide decision makers with a specialized listing of women with administrative expertise in vocational education who can serve as consultants, advisory council members, and applicants for vacant positions. This document is designed to foster the increased participation of women in the formulation of policy in vocational education.

BACKGROUND

Identifying Potential Candidates

Every effort was made to solicit potential listings from seven distinct areas of vocational education. Target populations were designated as follows:

1. State Education Agencies
2. Local Education Agencies
3. Regional Education Agencies
4. Universities/Colleges
5. Technical Institutes, Community/Junior Colleges
6. Proprietary Schools/Colleges
7. Federal Education Agencies

To obtain the names of state, local, and regional administrators, each state department of vocational education and its staff focusing on sex fairness was contacted by mail with a request for a complete listing of all female administrators in vocational education. Follow-up requests to those states not responding was conducted by telephone. To locate women administrators in federal education agencies, the United States Government Manual, the Congressional Staff Directory, HEW Directory, vocational rehabilitation Council listings, Veterans Administration Directory, and directories of individual military branches were all used for resource mailing lists to solicit the nomination of candidates from key contact persons.

To identify appropriate university/college, community/junior college, technical institute, and proprietary school personnel, the College Blue Book, Technical Education Yearbook, Industrial Teacher Education Yearbook, and Educational Research Centers Directory were used as primary references. Each school listed in the primary references included in the target categories was contacted by mail in an effort to secure the names of possible entrants for the directory. Announcements were also placed in those professional journals and newsletters (e.g., Centergram, Education Daily, AVA Update, WEECN, etc.) with wide distribution throughout the education community.

In an effort to provide firsthand information to the vocational education community, an overview of the project, "Survey of Women Administrators in Vocational Education," was presented before eleven major interest groups at the 1979 American Vocational Association convention held in Anaheim, California. Survey forms were given out during each presentation to interested persons for distribution to potential candidates in their home states.

As a result of these efforts, approximately 1,500 educational agencies and institutions from fifty-three states and territories nominated persons for the survey. Each woman whose name was submitted and whose position appeared to be in any way an administrative one was subsequently mailed a questionnaire by which she could determine her qualifications for inclusion in the directory. Self-evaluation on the criteria and verification by the immediate supervisor provided the only basis for the subsequent listing of a woman's name in the document.

Due to resource allocations and time factors, it was not feasible to check the qualifications of each applicant. Consequently, the accuracy of the data listed in the directory is based totally on the quality of the information provided by the candidates.

Because responses were voluntary and extensive follow-up was impractical, the directory lists only women who reported that they are involved in vocational education administration. The researcher recognizes that employment changes occuring over the two-year period in which the data were collected may mean that several well-qualified women may not have been identified. The National Center's staff sincerely regrets any instances in which an appropriate entrant was not included in this document.

Defining an Administrator

Administration means different things to different people. There are nearly as many definitions as there are people who have attempted to define it (Robbins 1976). Consequently, several strategies were used to develop a functional and appropriate definition.

The initial strategy involved two processes. First, professional organizations in which administrators hold membership were contacted by telephone. These included such organizations as the American Association of School Administrators, National Education Association, AFL-CIO, American Federation of Teachers, and the Elementary and Secondary School Principals Association. Responses indicated that none of these organizations had undertaken the task of establishing a general definition for an administrator as a part of its operational policy. State education agencies employing administrative personnel were also contacted. This contact revealed that job descriptions listing duties and responsibilities for specific positions are the primary tools these agencies use to identify and define administrators. These job descriptions vary with the demands of a particular job. Sample job descriptions were collected from various agencies.

The second major strategy involved a comprehensive literature review of the theories and the research problems pertaining to administration. In reviewing classical administrative theory, Filley (1969) states that Fayol, one of the earliest exponents of the general theory of management, defined administration in terms of five primary elements: planning, organization, command, coordination, and control. Robbins (1976), one of the more contemporary scholars of management, also defined administration as a process involving various functions: planning, organizing, leading, and evaluating others to achieve specific ends.

Several recent research studies designed to profile, identify, and validate competencies needed by vocational education administrators were reviewed. Such general administrative competencies as planning, development, supervision, budgeting, and evaluation (of programs, policies, personnel, facilities, and school and community relations) were reported (Branter 1977; Hoyle 1977; Resnick 1977; Andreyka 1976; Norton 1977; Pope 1975). Consequently, a tremendous similarity is seen between administration as defined by basic administrative theory and administrative competencies important to the vocational administrator.

A third strategy involved convening a panel of consultants at the National Center for a one-day meeting to discuss, accept, and/or reject any of the administrative functions produced by the findings of the literature review. This group was representative geographically and professionally of vocational administrators who formed the target population for the study. This approach was designed to provide a practical and realistic dimension to defining the actual functions of the present-day vocational education administrator.

ESTABLISHING THE CRITERIA FOR LISTINGS

The National Center's staff, a panel of consultants, project sponsors, and instrument clearance officers from the United States Office of Education all played a part in establishing the criteria on which entrants were selected for the survey.

The foremost consideration in qualifying for the Directory of Women Administrators in Vocational Education was based on three factors: (1) performance in a job role related to vocational education; (2) performance as an administrator; and (3) employment as an administrator.

Criterion 1. Performance in a Job Role Related to Vocational Education

The term vocational education is used as defined in Section 8 (1) of the Vocational Education Act of 1963 and as amended by Section 195 (1) of Public Law 94-482.

> Section 195 (1). The term "vocational education" means organized educational programs which are directly related to the preparation of individuals for paid or unpaid employment, or for additional preparation for a career requiring other than a baccalaureate or advanced degree; and, for the purposes of this paragraph, the term "organized education program" means only (a) instruction related to the occupation or occupations for which the students are in training or instruction necessary for students to benefit from such training, and (b) the acquisition, maintenance, and repair of instructional supplies, teaching aids and equipment; . . . (Public Law 94-482, Section 195(1); 20 U.S.C. 2461)

For the purposes of this project, vocational education administrators are defined as those administrative officers who are responsible for vocational education programs and those persons who are responsible for supportive services for vocational education.

Criterion 2. Performance as an Administrator

For the purpose of this project, an administrator is defined as a person who performs each of the following functions to some extent in her current job:

a. Program Administration — The design, development, and implementation of a functional component of the organization

b. Program Management — The maintenance of records and/or development of procedures, policies, and programs essential to the functioning of the organization

c. Financial Management — Participation in budgeting

d. Personnel Management — Participation in evaluation, policy-making, communications, etc. concerning personnel

Criterion 3. Employment as an Administrator

A woman must be employed in a position where she spends at least 50 percent of her time performing administrative functions directly connected with vocational education.

As indicated earlier, the ultimate selection for inclusion in the directory is based on the candidate's affirmative response to each criterion statement, the immediate supervisor's signature, and a signed release statement authorizing permission to publish the biographical data. Each woman who returned the questionnaire form with the three conditions satisfied was automatically included in the directory.

TYPES OF WOMEN ADMINISTRATORS LISTED

Levels of Administrative Authority

Women administrators employed in vocational education throughout the United States and territories listed in this directory reflect the levels of administrative responsibilities identified in most complex organizations: top management, middle management, and operating management.*

Top Management

- Deals with environmental forces
- Plans, organizes, controls
- Provides overall leadership

Middle Management

- Coordinates inputs, production, and outputs
- Acts as intermediary between top and operating management

Operating Management

- Gets the work done

Top Management

Top-level management is usually comprised of chief executives and other top staff officers. In vocational education, top-level positions include presidents and vice presidents of community and junior colleges, state directors of vocational education, directors of large city schools, superintendents of vocational education, and executive directors within other types of vocational education agencies. Their managerial tasks involve (1) developing overall vocational program goals, (2) affecting and complying with legislation and regulations of local, state, and federal government, (3) recommending short- and long-range program goals, (4) managing budgetary functions, (5) determining labor needs of business and industry, and (6) evaluating the effectiveness of the vocational education program.

Middle Management

The prime responsibility at the middle-management level is the coordination of resource inputs so that the operating level can effectively produce programs. These administrators usually (1) develop and conduct personnel development programs, (2) interview and recommend potential employees, (3) keep up to date on new developments, materials, and equipment in vocational–technical education, (4) conduct personnel evaluations, (5) coordinate budget requests, and (6) plan the organization of new programs. Some common titles at this level are vocational program coordinator, supervisor of industrial arts, director of curriculum, administrator, and manager. Middle management acts as an intermediary between top and operating management.

Operating Management

At the operating management level, we get down to the most concrete, detailed aspects of the organizational task. Here the intermediate plans of middle management are translated into short-range operating plans. Operational managers get the work done at the routine level of day-to-day operations. Their time perspective is the immediate future, and their work is subject to being programmed. Operating management personnel may include university professors who coordinate subject areas, project directors in research facilities, and supervisors and coordinators in local schools.

Administrative Positions Held by Women in Vocational Education

Several job titles were reported by women administrators who responded to the survey. In order to condense the data for summary reporting, specific job titles were collapsed into broad categories. In the Summary tables that will follow, the classification system listed below will prevail.

President (includes Provost, Vice President, Chief)
Director (includes Superintendent, Principal, Company Commander, Assistant Director)
Dean (includes Assistant Dean)
Chairperson (includes Head, Chair, Chairman)
Coordinator (includes Liaison)
Supervisor (includes Advisory, Special Assistant)
Education Specialist (includes Professor, Consultant, Therapist)

Support Personnel (includes Registrar, Counselor, Librarian)
Administrator (includes Manager, Officer)
Owner

No attempt was made to interpret the job titles reported by the respondents. For example, when the job title director was listed, one tally was counted under that job title. The placement of the job title in the tables does not represent any hierarchical order. Each job category represents many and varied scopes of responsibility.

Geographic Locations of Women Administrators

Based on the 1,579 responses to the survey, the majority of the women are employed in administrative positions in vocational education in the East North Central (276), South Atlantic (262), and Pacific (223) regions. Six of the remaining seven regions employ at least 100 women administrators, with the Middle Atlantic region employing the largest number (182) and the New England region employing the smallest number (101). The Outlying regional areas of Puerto Rico and American Samoa reported two women administrators each (see Table 1).

When the states were rank-ordered according to the greatest number of women administrators hired (see Table 2), California (140) ranked first followed by Ohio (101), New York (79), and Texas (77).

Jobs Held by Women Administrators in Agencies and Institutions

Taking another look at Table 1, women most often serve as directors (439) and coordinators (279) of vocational office education programs.

Table 3 illustrates that women are hired to serve as directors more often in the public community/junior colleges and technical institutes (122; 28 percent), local education agencies (96; 22 percent), and proprietary schools (83; 19 percent) than any of the other educational agencies and institutions surveyed. The public community/junior colleges and technical institutes also employed the greatest number of coordinators (125; 45 percent). Proprietary schools, however, reported more women hired in the top position of president or chief (38; 45 percent) than the other agencies.

At least 35 percent (547) of the respondents identified community/junior colleges or technical institutes as their employing agency. The smallest number of respondents, 3 percent each level, were those women employed in regional, federal, and other educational agencies (e.g., hospitals, comprehensive training agencies).

Most of the women administrators in vocational education (919) listed the master's degree as the highest degree held. The doctorate was listed as the highest degree by 315 women, while the bachelor's degree was the highest degree earned by 231 (see Table 4). Universities and colleges (117) and public community/junior colleges and technical institutes (99) employ more women administrators holding doctorate degrees than any of the other educational agencies. Fifty-nine percent of the women administrators employed in universities and colleges hold doctorate degrees. State (172) and local education agencies (215) along with community/junior colleges and technical institutes (353) were listed most frequently as employers of the women administrators with master's degrees. example, 74 percent of all the women administrators employed in state education agencies, 76 percent employed in local education agencies, and 72 percent employed in regional education agencies held master's degrees. Table 4 also shows that proprietary schools employed more women administrators with technical degrees, associate degrees, and no further formal education beyond high school than any of the other agencies and/or institutions.

Although master's degrees were the dominate educational degree acquired by women administrators in each of the job title categories, at least 24 percent of the women were hired in the position of president and educational specialist, and over 30 percent of the deans and chairpersons held doctorate degrees. There is one exception, however, and that is the job position of owner. Even though the number of persons who reported holding this position is comparatively small (12), 50 percent of them held bachelor's degrees and 33 percent held high school diplomas (see Table 5).

When women administrators were asked to identify the program area of responsibility under their direct supervision, in many instances several program areas were identified. To interpret the data, tallies by program area were recorded. Women who identified five or more occupational areas under their supervision were classified in a general category. In instances where women did not feel that their job responsibilities were in agreement with specific program areas, the classification of "other" was selected.

Table 6 shows that women administer program areas in health occupations (20 percent), office occupations (15 percent), and general occupations (20 percent). About half this number administer occupational home economics (10 percent) and trade and industry (11 percent) programs. The trade and industry program most often administered by women is cosmetology. Of the total women administrators, very few reported administering agriculture (1 percent), distribution (5 percent), and technical (8 percent) programs.

Women who administered five or more program areas in the general category held more doctorate and master's degrees than women administering other programs.

ORGANIZATION OF THE DIRECTORY

The data in the directory are organized into eight major sections categorized according to institutional affiliations — seven education agencies and one category classified as "other" to include cases that are not included in the major categories:

State Education Agencies
Local Education Agencies
Regional Education Agencies
Universities/Colleges
Technical Institutes, Community/Junior Colleges
Proprietary Schools/Colleges
Federal Education Agencies
Other

A description of the types of educational agencies and institutions included in each major category is listed in Appendix B.

Within each major section, biographical entries of the women administrators are arranged alphabetically by state. The inclusion of an entry under a particular state depends on the employment address of the individual. Within each state, individual entries are listed alphabetically by surname. The symbol * appearing before the surname in an entry identifies a woman who administers a nontraditional program area (agriculture, technical, trade and industry).

INDEXES

For the purpose of making this directory more useful, two indexes have been provided: the program area of responsibility index and an alphabetical index. The program area of responsibility index can be used to locate women administrators according to the major program areas directly under their administration. The alphabetical index lists all persons included in the directory in alphabetical order. A sample entry and instructions for using the index accompany each index.

THE ACCURACY OF INFORMATION

The information for each entry was supplied by the individual concerned. Every person listed in this directory provided the data personally in a questionnaire form. To be included in the directory, individuals signed a release statement authorizing the publication of their information, which was verified and signed by their immediate supervisor. No attempt was made by the National Center's staff to verify the information reported. For this reason, the quality of the information depends on the accuracy and veracity of the material provided by the persons listed.

Indexes

Program Area of Responsibility Index

This index lists women administrators according to the major program areas directly under this administration. This classification system is based on the Vocational Education Data Systems (VEDS) program categories (agriculture, distribution, health occupations, occupational home economics, office occupations, technical, trade and industrial, other—not elsewere classified).

A person's name may appear in as many as four program areas. Any person administering at least half of the major program areas—five or more—will be classified and listed in a General Category. A person's name will appear twice with two distinct accession numbers when that person is listed in two categories in the educational agency and institution sections.

This index is arranged in alphabetical order by state, program area, and surname.

As shown in the example below, the accession number is displayed below and to the rigth of the name. Additional information about the individual can be found under that number in the educational agency and institutional sections.

Alphabetical Index of Individuals

This index lists the names of all persons included in this directory. A person's name will appear twice with two distinct accession numbers when that person is listed in two categories in the educational agency and institutional sections. The index is arranged in alphabetical order by individual surname.

As shown in the example below, the accession number is displayed below and to the right of the surname. Additional information about the person can be found under that number in the appropriate educational agency and institution in the major section of this document.

Name — HOWARD, Lois B. — WA 80 0001 — Accession Number

THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR RESEARCH IN VOCATIONAL EDUCATION
The Ohio State University · 1960 Kenny Road · Columbus, Ohio 43210
Tel: (614) 486-3655 Cable: CTVOCEDOSU/Columbus, Ohio

Dear Vocational Administrator:

You have been nominated to participate in a national survey. This survey will generate a national listing entitled "Survey of Women Administrators in Vocational Education". There will be no charge for this listing. The Survey is being conducted by the National Center for Research in Vocational Education through the sponsorship of the United States Office of Education. The Survey is designed:

1. to provide a national listing of women with administrative expertise who may be identified as resource personnel and/or consultants in vocational education for policy development and administration.
2. to identify women who administer vocational education programs in areas traditionally administered by men (e.g., Industrial Arts, Trade & Industry, Agriculture).

To collect information needed for the Survey, all interested persons are requested to complete the enclosed questionnaire. Professional data will be collected to generate biographical entries of all persons included in the national listing. A sample entry follows:

> BARNES, Jennifer. Director of Vocational Education Programs. Division of Vocational and Technical Education. Ohio State University. 1190 Neil Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210. (614) 422-8819.
> Job Responsibilities: Technical, Office, Trade & Industry, Distributive Education.
> Area(s) of Study and Highest Degree: Curriculum Development. Ph.D. from University of Wisconsin—Madison.
> Area(s) of Professional Expertise: Competency-Based Education.

Please follow the directions below if you wish to apply for inclusion in the Survey of Women Administrators in Vocational Education.

1. Read and respond to Part I of the Questionnaire: Selection Criteria for Entrants.
2. If you responded yes to all statements in Part I and had the verification statement signed by your supervisor, proceed to Parts II and III of the Questionnaire and complete all questions in this area. Be certain to sign the Release Statement.
3. Return the completed Questionnaire in the enclosed addressed envelope which has been stamped for your convenience.

The survey will serve as an added resource in our professional endeavors. The information is being collected under the authority of Sections 136 and 171(a) (2) of the Vocational Education Act of 1963 as amended by Section 202(a) of Public Law 94-482. As noted above, your response is entirely voluntary, and your cooperation in creating this resource will serve to insure its success.

Sincerely,

Novella Ross
Project Director

SURVEY OF WOMEN ADMINISTRATORS IN VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

CANDIDATE QUESTIONNAIRE

Part I

Selection Criteria for Entrants

You can qualify as an entrant in the Survey if you meet each of the three criteria which follow.

YOUR RESPONSE IS ENTIRELY VOLUNTARY.

Directions: Please read each criterion statement and check yes or no in response to the statements as they apply to you.

Criterion 1. Performance in a job role related to vocational education as defined in Section 8(1) of the Vocational Education Act of 1963 and as amended by Section 195(1) of Public Law 94-482.

> Section 195(1). The term "vocational education" means organized educational programs which are directly related to the preparation of individuals for paid or unpaid employment, or for additional preparation for a career requiring other than a baccalaureate or advanced degree; and, for purposes of this paragraph, the term "organized education program" means only (A) instruction related to the occupation or occupations for which the students are in training or instruction necessary for students to benefit from such training, and (B) the acquisition, maintenance, and repair of instructional supplies, teaching aids and equipment; . . . (P.L. 94-482, Section 195(1); 20 U.S.C. 2461).

For the purpose of this project, vocational education administrators are defined as those administrative officers who are responsible for vocational education programs and those persons who are responsible for supportive services for vocational education.

According to the definition above, I currently perform in a vocational education job role.	Yes ______	No ______

Criterion 2. Performance as an administrator. An administrator is defined for our purposes as a person who performs all of the following functions to some extent in her current job.

a. Program Administration—the design, development, and implementation of a functional component of the organization.

b. Program Management—the maintenance of records and/or development of procedures, policies, and programs essential to the functioning of the organization.

c. Financial Management—participation in budgeting.

d. Personnel Management—participation in evaluation, policy-making, communications, etc. concerning personnel.

In my present job, I perform all of these administrative functions.	Yes ______	No ______

Criterion 3. Employment as an administrator.

I spend at least 50 percent of my time in my current position performing the administrative functions listed in Criterion 2.	Yes ______	No ______

If you answered no to any of the criterion statements, you are not eligible for inclusion in the Survey, and there is no need to continue with the questionnaire.
